- 2. This declaration is submitted in support of PG&E's Third Motion for Authority to Incur Miscellaneous Implementation Expenses (the "Motion"). Defined terms used herein shall have the meanings set forth in the Motion. I make this declaration based on personal knowledge, except where otherwise indicated, and if called as a witness, could and would testify competently to the matters set forth herein.
- communications issues with respect to ETrans. Unlike the other lines of business within PG&E today, the electric transmission line of business is operated as part of PG&E's integrated transmission and distribution business operations without any independent communications-related materials or resources. Therefore, PG&E has identified the need to develop a communications plan to communicate with future ETrans customers (including municipal districts, generators and certain wireless and fiber optic carriers as well as PG&E) and government and regulatory agencies about ETrans, including the services it will offer, operational information and emergency procedures. The communications plan will help ensure a smooth operating transition in electric transmission service from PG&E to ETrans. The ETrans communications plan will include development of materials (such as informational packets), and meetings with customers and government and regulatory agencies. As described below, a majority of the costs for this project will not be incurred until after confirmation of the Planus are associated to the project will not be incurred until after confirmation of the Planus are associated to the planus a
- Communications Consultant: PG&E seeks to hire John Ferrare as a communications consultant to provide design and technical writing services for all ETrans communications materials, to develop customer communications strategy and to manage the customer meetings that will be required. PG&E estimates that the total expenses for the communications consultant will be approximately $130,000, with work to commence in November 2002 and to continue to the Plan Effective Date.
